

The methodology

Mix design methodologies combine two approaches:

- a rational approach, based on an evaluation of the structural performance of the pavement,
- an empirical approach based on in-situ observations.

Whatever the approach, ultimate success depends on the quality and uniformity of the basic constituents and the end product.